Shalom אלירן,

As Israel wages war, while also contending with a geopolitical affront and an international legal onslaught, it is grappling with a difficult domestic issue: recruitment of the ultra-Orthodox into the IDF. Notably, the internal division presents the most formidable threat to the coalition. About 75% of Israel's Jews demand ultra-Orthodox conscription, but the government will fall if their petition is granted. JPPI's experts have dealt with this seemingly intractable issue, and you can read about it in this newsletter.

Prof. Yedidia Stern

Drafting Haredim - Coercion Is Not the Answer

Prof. Yedidia Stern

What do we do when an ultra-Orthodox public devout about its faith faces off against another public – one that's devout about the security of the state?
